This animation shows how the protests multiplied when the government passed loi 78 and tried to use more force and violence to stop the protesters. I found it very fascinating; a lucid example of fear and violence being ultimately self-defeating (which has come true for both the protesters and the police). Personally I can sympathize with both sides – police and protesters – and I don't know what the answer is. But I am sure if there is a real one, we won't find it through anger and violence.
